[H2] FAQs About Cyber Insurance

[H3] What Types Of Cyber Insurance Coverage Are There?

[Subtext] Ideally, your Atlanta business should have two kinds in effect at once.

First-party coverage protects you from the damage done to the business. DataStream Cyber Insurance has broad first-party coverage ensuring we cover losses and damages done to your company's computers, networks, IT systems, data, and business (E.G. reputational damage or the need for external services like legal) resulting from a cyber attack.

The third-party coverage protects against damage done to third parties you work with or serve, like customers. We offer comprehensive third-party coverage, including losses or damages, like data loss or stolen information.

[H3] I Already Have Good Cyber Security, Why Do I Need Cyber Insurance On Top Of It?

[Subtext] Even with the best cyber security, falling victim to a cyber-attack or data breach isn't a question of if, but when. Cyber attacks have increased by 574% in 2020, with 73% of attacks targeting small businesses.

Good cybersecurity helps reduce the likelihood of an attack but doesn't eliminate it. Cyber insurance acts as a last line of defense, assuring your business will survive and recover if a cyber incident happens.

[H3] How Does Cyber Insurance Fit Into An Overall Cyber Risk Program In Atlanta?

[Subtext] A comprehensive cyber risk program includes three main areas:

1. Cyber Security technologies and services are often handled by an IT department or an outsourced IT vendor, like an MSP.
2. Compliance-related activities align with an organization's specific industry.
3. Cyber insurance ensures the company doesn't face losses in case of an attack.

Ideally, these three areas work together, but cyber insurance often acts as the “defacto” regulator and sets the standards an organization should meet in technology and compliance areas.

Insurance in particular is very good at measuring risk, and the suggestions and requirements are a very good measure of what ultimately will keep an organization safer.

[H2] What To Look For In Cyber Insurance

[Subtext] An essential part of a modern business, cyber insurance offers peace of mind and assurance — if the policy works for you. DataStream Cyber Insurance leverages decades of experience and ongoing cyber insurance training for the benefit of your company.
